of people, spanning all levels of organisations, consider collaboration essential for their work²

"People really do need people—to deepen the pool of possibilities, to wade through the snarl of complexities, to achieve the multifaceted clarity of brilliant solutions."

— Steelcase⁵

Companies that promote collaboration are 5X as likely to be high performing compared to those that do not³

How do you enable collaboration and establish team flow?

3 workplace practices that encourage teamwork:²

Provide workspaces designed for collaboration

Make sure employees have the time they need to collaborate

Establish a technology platform that connects workers and allows for better collaboration

Group genius can't be bottled and just sprinkled on a project occasionally; it has to be spread throughout the organisation and practised every day.

— Keith Sawyer¹⁰

How to encourage group flow

You want group flow: a collective state that occurs when a group is performing at the peak of its abilities.⁶

Employees say that workspaces that support group flow enable them to:

Concentrate easily⁴

98%

Freely express and share ideas⁴

97%

Work in teams without interruption⁴

95%

The right kinds of spaces can help people collaborate, share knowledge, learn together and build social networks of trustful interaction.⁵

"Empowered offices"

—in which workers can choose their conditions—can increase productivity on cognitive tasks by 25 per cent or more.⁷

Technology can connect dispersed teams

Remote work is popular and growing fast!

Workers who spent some time working remotely:⁸

The right technology can connect people who wouldn't otherwise be able to contribute.

75%

of end users and IT managers say a consistent video conference user interface across workspaces/devices is important or critically important⁹

high-performance organisations are 1.5x

more likely to establish technology platforms that connect workers and allow for better collaboration²

Technology is evolving to create more authentic group experiences, even for remote workers. It can:

Reduce friction, so working remotely feels less remote

Help workers stay in flow as a team

Turn any space into a team space

A perfect fit for any space

Microsoft® Surface Hub® 2 is thin, light hardware designed for mobility¹¹—perfect for new office designs in which there is not a single space dedicated to collaboration but a variety of spaces.

On Surface Hub 2, run remote meetings seamlessly with Microsoft Teams, and use Microsoft Whiteboard to take team brainstorming to the next level.
