

To provide effective IT solutions which serve to maintain your productivity.

Crimson Line provides managed IT services for the professional services and retail industries by a highly experienced team handling all aspects of your IT from traditional IT support to complex cloud solutions for national and regional clients.

Crimson Line was founded by Louis Koen in 1998 and has branches in Cape Town and Johannesburg, South Africa. As we have years of experience in IT management and support, we'll share our expert knowledge with you, or your IT team. Our Managed Cloud Services strategy is to consider all role players, current hardware and software as well as future needs, which leads to thorough change management during your migration to the Cloud.

The company name was derived from the line which appears on the horizon of the earth at dawn. Our name 'Crimson Line' encapsulates an ethos of foresight and optimism. As a result, our engineers are avid readers of forums, white papers and constantly undergo training, to ensure we remain our expert knowledge in an ever and rapid evolving industry.

To date we have built a vast portfolio of loyal customers that depend on our expertise to conduct their core business functions. We constantly reach new heights in both customer service and service delivery. With hard work and focusing on building trust relationships, Crimson Line has become the preferred service provider of managed IT services for many national and regional clients.

Let's take care of IT for you. We're experts at it.

Although we are experts at cloud migration, we grew up doing traditional IT support. We service clients of varying sizes and understand that for each client their IT is extremely important.

Our IT consulting service is all about ensuring that our clients achieve their business goals through effective use of IT. What sets us apart from other IT companies is that we look at your business as if it was our own, and then decide, with our expertise in IT, what technologies we would implement to solve your IT needs.

Using this approach, we ensure our client adopts the right technologies for the right business reasons.

Since we deal with many clients, we deal with a variety of issues daily, giving you the advantage of our 20 years in business experience.

Moving to the Cloud will result in less capital expenditure, greater flexibility with resources – hardware and software – and allows employees to truly work from anywhere with the added benefit of genuine collaboration.
