Build

Phase one: Build your Azure footprint

Using eir evo's Azure Spark solution, our team will take the time and effort needed to fully understand your business requirements. This then drives the design required to meet governance standards and dictates what landing zone structure will be adopted and built.

Phase One Service features

Create clarity surrounding what your Azure footprint should be.

Optimise cost

Optimise cost measures and facilitate your migration to a performant model.

Phase two: Migrate to Azure

air evo holds both the Windows Server and SQL Server Migration to Microsoft Azure Advanced Specialisation as well as an active Gold Cloud Platform Competency, allowing us to demonstrate our proven and audited expertise in migrating and optimising workloads to Azure.

Phase Two Service Features

Performance-based migration

Once Spark is completed, workloads are assessed and rationalised, and then migration patterns are planned. Allowing for performance-based migration and risk mitigation.

Minimum risk and maximum efficiency

Migrations are run over an agreed schedule to meet your pacing requirements. Our approach ensures minimum risk and maximum efficiency to migration.

Maximised spend efficiency

Once migration is complete, both the footprint and each individual application stack is reviewed with a goal of improvement and optimisation. Ensuring your spend efficiency is being maximised, and workloads meet expectations.

Manage

Phase three: Azure management

Operating Azure is a complex and time-consuming requirement, regardless of the scale of your environment. Azure's pace of change requires continuous, expert management to ensure the platform is operating not only to your required standards, but also in line with Microsoft's operational excellence principles.
