CoronaPass™ is a new app to support policy implementation and manage risk based on health data

CoronaPass will enable people and organizations around the globe to resume normal life before a vaccine for COVID-19 is found.

Until a vaccine is created, approved and administered at a scale the world has never seen, the resumption of social and economic activity will be dependent on our ability to effectively manage health status and risk related to COVID-19.

Introducing CoronaPass

With CoronaPass organizations can create different types of passes demonstrating that an individual is free to leave home or enter a building for example. The criteria for pass types is set by the organization implementing the CoronaPass solution.

One example of the solution is to allow users to apply for a pass through the validation of antigen/antibody test results. Following the test and approvals, they receive a CoronaPass QR code that can be stored on mobile devices (similar to downloading a boarding pass) and presented for validation when necessary.

The solution can be implemented in a matter of days. It is scalable, robust and secure – based on Bizagi's market leading intelligent process automation platform.

How it works

After a medical test, users can provide evidence of their test result through an application form on their computer or mobile device, which is then sent for validation or approval by the relevant healthcare authority or employer, checking against their existing patient or employee data. Once approved, the CoronaPass can then be sent to the individual via email or to access via the mobile app.
