Microsoft Viva

Every leader today is rethinking their business priorities amidst a constantly changing environment – seeking to grow market share and retain customers while doing more with less. At the same time, every worker is facing a new wave of work-related pressures: economic turbulence, labor shortage, and resource strain.

In today's fast-paced business world, employee productivity is seen as key to driving performance – and that's certainly true. But it's important to remember that productivity alone cannot lead to sustained success. In fact, relying solely on productivity stifles creativity, limits teamwork, and increases employee burnout.

Engagement and productivity are not two opposing forces that needs to be balanced; both are critical drivers of performance that mutually reinforce each other. With the right tools, data, and insights, leaders have an opportunity to continuously improve both sides of the equation and fuel sustainable performance. Viva Insights helps leaders gain visibility into workplace activities, communication behaviors, and collaboration patterns to streamline decision-making and improve business performance.
