Our Story

It all started in 1999. We had a vision to keep patrons connected to stories that mattered— stories from home, and from around the globe.

Now, PressReader is an award-winning platform that delivers digital content to patrons in a way that makes sense to them. We've partnered with thousands of publishers to bring over 7,000 trusted newspapers and magazines to a single, user-friendly platform.

With new titles uploaded as soon as they're available from publishers, every patron can stay connected to the stories they care about, and discover exciting new favorites.

This is the future of news: It's innovative. It's inclusive. It's international. And it's at your fingertips.

We're a Canadian company headquartered in Vancouver.

We offer 7,000+ publications available on any device.

Offices in Ireland, Manila, as well as a network of global representatives

Why it's good for your library

We're plugged into your world

It's our world, too. We work with schools and libraries to make sure patrons get information from the right places.

Come together

Our content allows patrons to collaborate and open up a world of diverse perspectives.

No limits

Unlimited downloads that last forever and available on all devices so patrons can continue reading from anywhere.

Go green

Offer sustainable services to your patrons while enhancing their discovery experience.

Easy and accessible

Seamless on-site and offsite access. PressReader can be set up in minutes. There's never anything to upgrade, install or maintain.

Set it up in minutes

There's nothing to plug in, install, or maintain.

Think outside the box

“I see no fundamental difference between the role of libraries in the 19th century and today. Broadly I see that as to educate, inform and yes, entertain. The media and the delivery methods are all that have really changed.”

Embrace change

Some libraries fight new technology. Others successfully integrate tech to create spaces that encourage collaboration, creativity, and discovery.

Patrons want on-demand, user friendly services. Give it to them.

Types of access

Onsite
through the library's Wi-Fi

Offsite
from the library's website

Offsite
using a Library card

At the library

Your patrons get unlimited access to over 7,000 premium newspapers and magazines as soon as they step through your doors. They can browse on any device by following two simple steps:

Download the PressReader app or visit to pressreader.com
Connect to the library's Wi-Fi network.

That's it. Really.

With quality content from more than 120 countries in over 60 different languages, patrons from all over can stay connected to what's happening locally and overseas.

Best of all, they can get access how they want — on library computers, or on their own personal devices.

Offsite

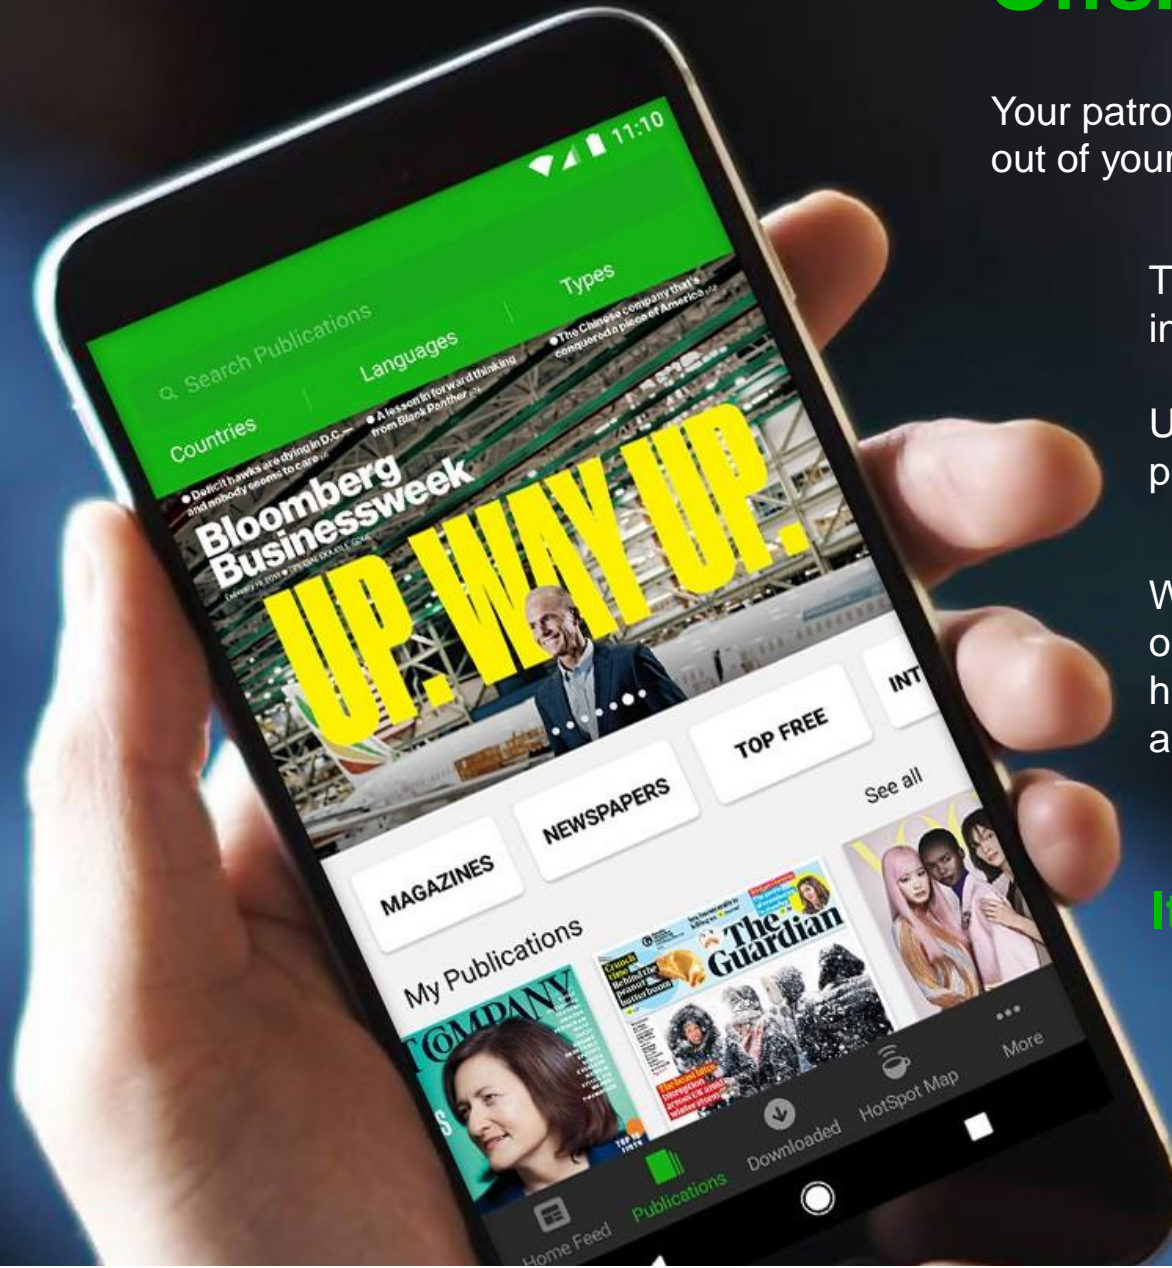

Your patrons can take PressReader with them even after they walk out of your doors.

They can access PressReader offsite on any personal device in a few different ways:

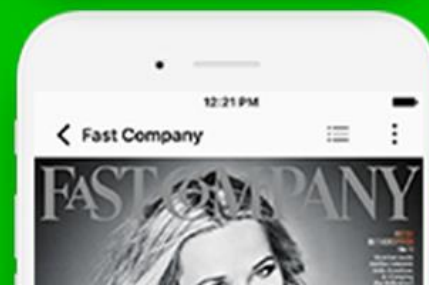

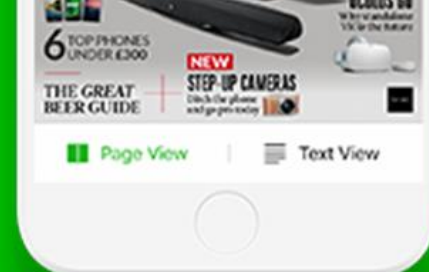

Using their library card to login on the PressReader app or on pressreader.com or through your library website.

Whether they find a cool magazine just before they leave, or want to finish up an article on the way home. They'll have access to their favorite publications anywhere, anytime.

It's possible with PressReader.

Chinese hackers stole Navy material

Contractor's network but key evidence warfare information, officials say

BY ELLEN HANSEN

Chinese government hackers stole a large amount of Navy material from a contractor's network, according to officials, including information on the Navy's fleet, its personnel, and its operations. The material was stolen from a contractor's network that was used to manage the Navy's fleet. The contractor's network was used to manage the Navy's fleet, and the material was stolen from that network.
