

The low code api builder and business rule engine

You really need that change. That small extra step that brings your company the innovation everybody wants. But change is challenging. You need IT resources to get there. And IT is scarce these days. As a result, your business innovation comes to a full stop.

So what if you can create your own APIs and business rules, simply by engaging your business specialists?

Agility by design

Drag and drop. It's that simple to integrate complex data models and rules. Start defining your business rules in seconds. And create APIs on the fly.

Audits included

Record every step of your model execution. Reviewing what happened is as easy as hitting playback, down to every last detail.

Easy integrations

All of your API versions run side-by-side. Clients or suppliers can integrate at their own pace. IT changes won't hold you back in your innovation anymore.

Undo at any time

Don't like the results of your new business rules? Just hit undo. The source versioning and change history will ensure nothing is lost.

(Artificial) Intelligence

The most amazing thing about Rulecube is that your business people, your knowledge experts, can work with it. So the people who know best are the people who define the business rules.

If you believe that artificial intelligence knows even better, you can effortlessly mix an AI solution in your business rules.

Stop making excuses for slow business innovation. Start redefining your business today.

We were done in just 6 weeks with something that used to take months.
