Mostly As: Pin Head

I go places. Lots of cool places. And if I like it then I'm going to drop a pin on it.

Socialize Better

Never share others' locations without their permission.

Play Safer

Consider waiting until after you've left a location before posting about your visit. Posting your current location can attract unwanted visitors or let people know that no one is home.

Mostly Bs: Selfie Centered

If anyone knows how to take an awesome photo of me, it's me!

Socialize Better

There's a big world out there. Focus your lens on something that represents your hobbies or interests.

Play Safer

Think before you post. Are you ready for this picture of you to be out there—and out of your control—forever?

Mostly Cs: Hashtag Hyper

#Trending! #Savvy! #Winning! #Annoying? #Maybe. #DontCare!

Socialize Better

Try to use no more than two hashtags in a post. Use too many and your followers may think you're spamming them.

Play Safer

It pays to be cautious when using hashtags because they can give away your location.

Mostly Ds: Team Emo

Life is a downer.

Socialize Better

Reach out to trusted friends for help when you need it. And remember to share the good times, too.

Play Safer

Think before you post your intimate feelings—some scammers prey on those who show vulnerability online.

Mostly Es: Mommarazzi

Everyone thinks their kid is the cutest, but mine actually is!

Socialize Better

Moderation in all things goes for kid pics too. Switch up your subject matter once in a while.

Play Safer

Think before sharing those photos of your kids in the bathtub. They'll be adults one day, and may not think it's cute. Check your privacy settings to make sure that only those who you want to see your posts can see them.
