Bytes Quantum & Microsoft 365

Data is king when it comes to paying only for what you use for Microsoft subscription-based licenses. The problem is that getting this data is a challenge in itself. Whilst your consumption data is available via the Microsoft Administration portal, extracting and interpreting it is problematic. Cloud consumption costs are dynamic and unpredictable, and few organisations know how to manage these costs and find that they often end up overspending..

Unused & Unassigned Licenses

Reduce or eliminate on-premise capital costs together with a reduction in office overheads

Driving Adoption of Office 365

Quantum 365 provides both sub application level visibility and the ability to create customised groups to support your analysis of workload adoption and training requirements.

Forecasting & Cross-charging

Quantum 365 incorporates an AI ‘tagging’ engine which allows you to sort data into categories and business segments - which enables reporting down to cost centre or even user level.

Top food processing firm, ABP, drive digital change, thanks to Bytes and Microsoft solutions

ABP Food Group are an award-winning supplier of beef and lamb products to retailers, wholesalers and food service providers. With a turnover of €3bn, they employ over 11,000 people across the UK, Ireland and Europe. ABP wanted to increase collaboration across their complex divisional workforce, many of whom had just started working remotely. To maintain their edge in a competitive industry, they also required an updated approach to customer and supplier communication. The main obstacle to such change was ABP's large legacy estate, which was unable to fully support modern collaboration, communication and remote working practices.

Building a business case for Microsoft Office 365

The Bytes Quantum 365 service enabled ABP to understand the user requirements across their entire group, and build a strong business case including costs, user profiles and timescales.

Driving Adoption with the ABP group

The Bytes Quantum 365 Service continued to deliver benefits to ABP right through deployment to adoption, giving complete visibility of staff updates, user patterns – enabling the adoption programme to be focused on the right people which significantly improve uptake contributing significantly to the success of the transformation

"Bytes have delivered superbly, helping us to make the right decisions during a major digital transformation.
