Why do you need to back up Microsoft 365 / Office 365?

- Microsoft does not back up and recover Microsoft 365 / Office 365 mailboxes and files stored in OneDrive and SharePoint Document Libraries
- Microsoft customers are responsible for configuring their data security and meeting compliance requirements

- This includes:
  - Data classification and user access management
  - Data security and backups
  - Endpoint device management

- Microsoft cannot help with unexpected data loss or damage
  - Users can accidentally or intentionally delete important emails and files
  - Disruption of service might occur

- Problems with accessing and searching data

Backing up mailboxes and files within OneDrive and SharePoint

- Back up your:
  - Mailboxes, including all emails, attachments, calendars and contacts
  - Files stored within OneDrive and SharePoint Document Libraries
- Choose whether to back up mailboxes only or mailboxes, OneDrive and SharePoint
- Once you set up your account, your Office 365 data is automatically backed up
  - Set it and forget it
- Backups take place several times per day (up to 4 times a day)
  - This ensures a low recovery point objective (RPO) in case of data loss or damage
  - A low RPO means minimal data is lost because the last backup you took is so recent
